

Readers & Viewers

We caught one of the smaller headlines “Tulip Garden in Glen Williams” on the cover of your current issue by happenstance - to our surprise there was a photo of a portion of our front yard (pgs.18 -19) from last May. This past fall we added a ‘few’ more, we now have about 21,000 bulbs on the property for Spring 2011.

Chris Sargent, Glen Williams

We look forward to the magazine, keep up the good work. I was most impressed with the ad to content ratio and full photo spreads, it's a magazine for the reader and not packed full of advertising. I happen to be designing a landscaping job for a client this spring and truthfully, it was inspiring when I opened Escarpment Views to see the content was focused on gardens. I have an interesting mix in my own backyard of gardens, patios, a natural river and very large workshop where I build cruising catamarans... It's my working backyard. Our back yard has small planted gardens but is mostly natural fauna where Yellow Lady and Showy Ladyslipper Orchids grow pretty much like dandelions.

Michael Jaworski, Pine Tree Harbour, Bruce Peninsula

I have just finished reading the Spring EV magazine and feel that it is your most interesting, informative & beautiful issue thus far. The photos were splendid and it is time you expanded the magazine...more pages please or how about more issues? Seana McKenna's article exposed wonderful insight into the mind of Canada's most talented thespian. Bravo & keep up your great work.

Pam Friendly, Brampton

Editor's note: Thanks, Pam! We are happy to point out that this issue contains more pages than ever. With our advertisers' and subscribers' support, we hope to continue growing.

Michael Jaworski's backyard patio, Bruce Peninsula, and wild Ladyslipper Orchids (above).