

Beckie Jas & Brandon Koepke Create 3rd Book on Climate Change

The team at Halton Region has published their third and final picture book about climate change and air quality. Suitable for children of four to eight years, the book continues with the barn owl characters from the first two volumes and introduces two northern birds. The story centres on a power failure and how to weather this kind of storm. At the back of the book are some fun enrichment exercises to involve young readers even more. An electronic version of the book is available to download for free at www.halton.ca/powerjams. The books are available in several different languages. Hard copies can be bought for $11.90 + tax through 1.866.442.5866.

Should Students Learn a Third Language?

Ted Arnott, MPP for Wellington-Halton Hills, has asked the government to develop a strategy to have students learn a third language in addition to English and French. In an increasingly global economy, Arnott believes that communicating with people in other countries in their own languages will help Ontario residents compete and succeed.
